Assuming this inequality holds, in the rest frame of particle A, determine the magnitude of the 3-momentum of particles B and C, and the energies of particles B and C.

Assume, for simplicity, that particle C is mass-less.

for particles below that certain size it is not possible to get definite separation of the particles. This can be seen from FIGURE 1 in which the full line X shows a typical relation between the apex discharge and particle size in a conventional cyclone elutriator. Let us say that A represents the boundary size of the separation. It will be seen that all particles of size greater than A will
